There are many weather indicators. Forecasts reach us by way of the newspaper, radio and TV. Plus the status of one's rheumatism and the alamac's predictions. Some people find signs in the activities of squirrels and birds and one of the old standbys is the groundhog. February 2 is groundhog day and the calendar says that is Friday. We will check on the business of shadow watching. Actually, chances are that we will put all the predictions, forecasts, traditions, folklore and hopes in a hat, shake the hat and then sit back and take whatever comes. January has been a month for the record book. Much of the clearing off of fallen trees and limbs is yet to be done. The point is that we made it and will now take on February, the "shorty" month. Birthday month, too, for Washington and Lincoln, and do not forget Valentine's Day, the 14th. And, anytime, will do to see some "heralds of Spring."

Another record of sorts. We made it through the week end without watching a football game. Monday night had one, but basketball is ruling the roost until baseball arrives.

One of the favorite entertainers of our time, "Grandpa Jones" will present a bash in his honor for fifty years to the Nashville Music Hall of Fame museum. Fine. Appomattox is the birthplace of the five-stringer, and we should have a large collection on display of famous banjo items.

There was a largely attended auction sale in town Saturday. I arrived late and left early, but enjoyed seeing many friends. There was brisk bidding on a large collection of valuable items, including antiques. Memo . . . only item I ever recall getting at an auction sale was a twist of chewing tobacco, which I gained title to for fifty cents, and still have in my basement museum.

Our friend, Mrs. Hazel Buchanan was just by to give us a book about birds. I feed em and now will read about'em. Thanks.

The Chinese are much in the news at the moment and this is the Chinese New Year. About a dozen animals are associated with rotating years, and I think this is The Year of the Ram, Goat or Sheep. Also I think I was born in the year of The Horse. I was in college with several Chinese students and thought highly of them. Shek, especially, had a world of patience, a quality I have acquired in some measure.

Cold, windy nights and I wonder if anyone in Appomattox County sleeps in a feather bed? Last one I saw was up around Fredericksburg many years ago.

Had a pleasant chat with my friend, Malcolm Booker, of near Gladstone on the Buckingham, Nelson county line. Always a delight to cross paths with such a scholar and charming gentleman.

Still reading seed and nursery catalogs but will have to wait a bit yet to wear some rust off'n the garden hoe.

Let us all be in The Class of '79 and make it a growing year for Growing Appomattox. Thanks for reading and seeya next week.

Laurie H. McLean

Selected To Attend The 23rd International Edison Birthday Celebration

Laurie H. McLean of Appomattox has been selected to attend the 23rd International Edison Birthday Celebration, February 9-12 in Orlando, Florida.

Laurie, a student at Appomattox County High School, is among six outstanding science students being sponsored by Virginia Electric and Power Company to attend the event as part of the company's "Centennial of Light" celebration. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McLean.

Laurie is a member of the National Honor Society, a nominee for the 1979 Governor's School for the Gifted, Division winner of the 1978 Appomattox High School Science Fair, and has won three first place ribbons on science projects entered in the Five County Fair Competition.

The Birthday Celebration is held annually in either the United States or a foreign country in recognition of the achievements of the science and technology communities. The Thomas Alva Edison Foundation, located in Southfield, Michigan, co-sponsors the event with a major corporation or a foreign government for outstanding science students and teachers. This year's event will be co-sponsored by the Edison Electric Institute on behalf of the investor-owned utilities.

All school divisions in Vepco's service area were invited to nominate an outstanding science student to attend the celebration. The winning students were selected by six judges from the educational communities of Virginia and North Carolina.

Chosen as an alternate the southern part of Vepco's service area was John K. Carter, a student at Halifax County High School. Carter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carter.

Spencer Named To Bench In Area

Judge Robert B. Spencer Jr. will take over the Appomattox County General District Court on February 1, 1979.

He recently was elected by the General Assembly to the third and last remaining full time general district judgeship allocated to the 10th Judicial District.

Spencer has been on the bench in Buckingham County since 1960 and in Cumberland County since 1973.

He will preside over court in Appomattox in addition to the other two jurisdictions.

The late Judge Charles F. P. Crawley retired at the end of the year after serving as General District Court and County Court judge in Appomattox since 1946.

"Judge Crawley and I were the only remaining parttime judges" in the 10th District, Spencer said. "We were both appointed by the Circuit Court judge."

The 1973 General Assembly mandated all judgeships would become full-time posts by July 1, 1980, Spencer said, and three slots were set up for the 10th.

"We were one of the few districts left," he said, that had not filled all the allocated full time judgeships.

Since Crawley's retirement, R. H. Gray Jr., substitute judge, has presided over General District sessions here. Judge Spencer said court will still be held in Appomattox on Wednesdays.

WHEN THE RED CROSS BLOODMOBILE made its third visit of the fiscal year to Appomattox on Monday of this week, out of the 131 registered donors, 122 units of blood were collected making Appomattox County 100% for this visit, in fact, two units over the quota.

There were 14 first-time donors at this visit, most of whom were students from Appomattox County High School. The success of this visit was largely attributed to the number of students who donated blood either for the first time or are previous donors. Some of the students, shown in photo above, were Bill Vaughan, on table; standing, left to right, Donna Hodges, Rita Reynolds, and David Stratton; and in back, Mike Powell.

Our county was short of the quota at both of the first two visits of the fiscal year but citizens came through for this visit. We have two more planned visits this year and we feel certain that we will continue to reach our goal.

Lions Club Needs Assistance For Blind Athletes To Compete In National Games

On November 11, 1978, a very good thing happened for blind athletes in Virginia; the U.S.A.B.A. - Virginia was formed. This is a state chapter of the national organization, the United States Association for Blind Athletes. The major goal of the national organization is to develop blind athletes nationwide to provide national competition for them and to develop a national team to represent the United States in the quadrennial olympics for the disabled (in Holland in 1980).

Appomattox County has two athletes, both students at Appomattox County High School, who are qualified to participate in this competition. Ricky Mitchell and Jeff Bryant are being sponsored by the Appomattox Lions Club. However, the local Lions need financial assistance in order to send both these young men to compete and are asking for donations from citizens. Large or small donations may be sent to the Appomattox Lions Club, Appomattox, Virginia 24522 no later than February 7, 1979. Won't you send in a donation so that these boys may compete in recreational activities for the Emmett L. Bishop, Chief Inspector for Colonial Pipeline Company's Appomattox construction office, is shown standing in front of recently erected sign in front of the office and warehouse for Spreads 2 and 3. The office and warehouse are located just west of Appomattox on Route 460 near the State Police Department. The Spread 1 office is located in Pelham, North Carolina, two and one-half miles south of the Virginia-North Carolina state line.

Office & Warehouse Open Here For Colonial Pipeline Expansion

1979 Pipeline Project Will Increase Capacity

With major expansion planned by Colonial Pipeline Company, a new office and warehouse has opened here in Appomattox to accomodate spreads 2 and 3 and is located just west of Appomattox on Highway 460.

Colonial Pipeline is a common carrier, moving refined liquid petroleum products from oil refineries along the Louisiana - Texas Gulf Coast via 4,167 miles of pipe to 13 states in the South and on the East Coast.

With its pipe buried six feet underground, the company prides itself because, "the pipeline operates quietly with little public awareness of its presence," noted Colonial Pipeline President H. T. Chiltin, in a company booklet entitled, "Performance and Trends."

But the lack of public awareness has diminished in recent weeks as miles and miles of 36 inch bright red, steel pipe have been seen moving along the area railroad lines.

The pipe being shipped to this area is stored at three locations (pipe yards). The pipe yard at Dillwyn in Buckingham County is located just off the rail line in the northern portion of the town.

A second pipe yard is located at Red House and a third near Brookneal. The pipe seen along area railroad lines recently is being sidetracked at Prospect, unloaded and shipped by truck to the Red House pipe yard.

Ralph Mitchell, of Columbia, in Cumberland County, who is materiel coordinator for the company, reported that "We have about 39 miles of pipe at Dillwyn and another 22 miles at the other two yards."

Meeting Demand

About 2,100,000 barrels of petroleum products move through the existing pipeline in a 24 hour period, but that's not enough to meet demand of producers. So Colonial is undertaking a $213 million expansion program in 1979 to increase that liquid petroleum products carrying capacity to 2,300,000 barrels per day (a 10 per cent increase).

According to W. L. Nicoll, manager-employee and community relations for Colonial Pipeline Company in Atlanta, Ga., "The 1979 expansion will be constructed to parallel the existing system, and that's what all the pipe you've seen recently is for."

"The expansion will be carried out in two spreads," noted Ralph Mitchell.

Spread one will take the pipe from Colonial's tank farm at Greensboro, N.C., to the Virginia-N.C. border. Spread two is from the N.C.-Va. line to the company's Mitchell Junction tank farm in Cumberland County (Rt. 690, 10 miles west of Cartersville near the Buckingham-Cumberland County line).

The spread one construction office is located in Pelham, North Carolina, two and one-half miles south of the Virginia-North Carolina line. The spread two and three construction office is located on Route 460 just west of Appomattox.

History

Colonial Pipeline Company was organized in 1962 as a common carrier pipeline system linking oil refineries on the Gulf Coast to major markets in the south and on the East Coast.

The pipeline originates near Houston, Texas, travels through Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and winds up at Linden, New Jersey, near the New York Harbour.

The system also has stub lines branching from the main line which serve Georgia, Tennessee, South and North Carolina.

In Virginia the stub lines leave the Cumberland County tank farm headed west for Roanoke and east for the Richmond and Tidewater areas.

Since it was initially place in service in 1964, the pipeline has operated each year at capacity or near capacity, with an ever increasing demand. The company began serving ten shippers.

That increasing demand is evidenced by the company's expansion record. In 1965 the system capacity was about 800,000 barrels per day (BPD). In 1968 the pipeline was expanded to 1,152,000 BPD by pumping machinery additions. A 460 mile, 36 inch loop was added between Baton Rouge, La., and Atlanta, Ga., in 1971 to increase capacity to 1,440,000 BPD.

In 1976, a 183 mile 40 inch loop was added between Beaumont, Tex., and Baton Rouge, La., and stub line capacities increase into Tennessee and southern Georgia. This also increased the main line capacity to 1,800,000 BPD.
